

God's Master Key The Law of Control and Direction

by

Agnes Holloway

This booklet contains the writings of Agnes Holloway, a humble South London housewife and mother, on a theme of great importance for the Church today - the relation of Science to Religion. Although a relatively uneducated woman, she claims to have received from God a revelation of His Master Key, the Law of Control and Direction, which unlocks the wisdom of modern science and the full orthodox Catholic Faith. She says that this revelation was given to her by God in 1929 for the whole Church at a time of supreme crisis and intellectual persecution. That time is now.

The booklet contains three sections:

- Her main treatise on "God's Master Key: The Law of Control and Direction", outlining the principles of the Law as they relate to the Existence of God, the soul in Man in the context of Evolution, Original Sin, the place of Christ in Creation, the Holy Eucharist, and the Book of Genesis.
- Answers she gave to various questions concerning the Law of Control and Direction: especially on the Incarnation and the meaning of Grace.
- An autobiography in which she describes her poor working class background in London and how God revealed these ideas to her for the whole Church.

The booklet contains an introduction and footnotes by her son, Fr. Edward Holloway. He has developed the ideas given to her in further theological detail in his major work Catholicism: A New Synthesis, which is a companion volume to this booklet.
